

DIED—At Weston, on the 15th inst., of an inflammation of the brain, the Hon. BENJAMIN OLNEY, a native of Saratoga county, N. Y., born May 23, 1797. He was first married at the age of 21, and the second time at 25. For six years he was engaged in his native place in the mercantile business, since which he has devoted his attention to agriculture.

In 1833 he removed to the then territory of Michigan, and from there in 1834 to his late residence in this county, where he has ever since lived. At an early age he became the subject of hopeful conversion, and at about 20 united with the Baptist church. For several years after his removal to this county he and his wife were the only members of that Christian faith in Weston township; and it was principally through his influence, some fifteen years since, that a small Baptist church was organized there. Judge Olney was uniformly a man of quiet and staid habits—of that firmness and decision of character which nothing but a conviction of error could change. His religious faith was exemplified daily in all the walks of private life, in his family, in his intercourse with his neighbors and the community generally, as well as in the sanctuary.

His family relations were of the most happy kind; hardly a word of discord ever occurred among them, and he had the happiness to see all of his children (except the youngest) become exemplary and consistent members of the same church with himself.

As a husband and father, he was kind and indulgent, almost to a fault.

For two years past his health has been declining, and his last illness was only from Monday evening until Saturday morning.

Honest, upright and punctual in his dealings, those who knew him best esteemed him most. "An honest man's the noblest work of God."

His funeral was attended on Monday, the 17th inst., and a discourse from Elder A. Brown was delivered, from Heb. xi. 4, last clause—"And by it he being dead, yet speaketh."
